

After, we decided to go up at the top of the Triumph Arc. When we were at the top, after more than two hundred steps, it was 6.00p.m. We could see the Eiffel Tower with a lot of light because it was 6 o'clock. We took some pictures and go down.

Friday, one part of the crutch project group was in Paris. Only Anne-Marie couldn't come with the rest of the group. We came by car and arrived at 5.30p.m in Champs Elysées.

When we were down of the Triumph Arc, a ceremony was beginning. It was the time for soldier to light again the flame of the Unknown Soldier. We took 10 minutes to see it and decided to go to Trocadero. At this place, we could see better the Eiffel Tower with all the light. And to finish, we wanted to see Montmartre. So we took the car and went but we didn't find place to park so we just took one picture.

After this moment, it was 9.00p.m. We had to go to East Train station to take Anne-Marie. She arrived at 10.00p.m and we had to sleep at her home. We arrived about 9.30p.m at East Train station and decided to go to restaurant. We chose a little one and ate pizza. Anne-Marie join us during the dinner. We leaved Paris at 10.30p.m to Montereau where Anne-Marie live. We passed the night in her house. We woke up at 6.30a.m because at 9.00a.m we had a meeting in Chelles. So, at 9 o'clock we met Vincent Herdegen, the director of the biggest company selling crutches. We talked about during one hour about our project and the market. After, he showed us his production line and we discovered that it is almost all automated. We left at 11a.m and arrived in Nancy at 3p.m.
